the universe stores everything it learns in DarMeT (dark magnetic thread). that includes you and me and every bug, lizard and grain of sand. this will only make sense to you if you have read my other DarSeFT (dark superfluid theory) papers.

DarMeTs (dark magnetic threads) keep all of their magnetic force internal but its windings are absolutely superconducting of electrical force which are exposed to space, though releasing nearly none of it to space. but just enough to leave briefly lingering spinning coils of electrical force which can't propagate without a medium and would be way to weak to ever detect. but common sense suggests the influence of this spinning electrical force near other atoms could encourage them a little toward helical molecule formation, DNA.

thus consciousness which resides in the DarMeT (dark magnetic thread) has a way to influence the evolution of life and there is a possible mechanism for souls to incarnate from the magnetic thread back into biological life.

DarSeFT (dark superfluid theory) is a physical theory which generates from its basic concepts special and general relativity, quantum physics, classical physics, evolution of life and consciousness. in DarSeFT (dark superfluid theory) a universe without life and consciousness is impossible in principle because of its explanation of how existence got started.

the concept of DarMeT (dark magnetic thread) suggests to some degree how individual consciouesses can be both in full union with cosmic consciousness and yet retain individual identity as a developing time-line in the magnetic thread. all the thread is connected throughout the cosmos but segments of it are individuals. it is suspected that the consciousness of the cosmos is very different from us individual segments of it in the sense that it has no external senses or perceptions as we do, but only a unified internal experience.
